

Garrett Brownlee
Brooks Brissette
NSC 3120 07
10/24/25

RO Prospectus

- My partner and I will train our rat to walk across a tight rope

We will be reinforcing our rat's behavior with brown rice as its reward. To initiate training, I'll shape the rat to walk 3-4 inches across the thick tightrope to the spot where my hand is placed just underneath the rope. Once the rat is comfortable in doing so, we will train the rat to do the same behavior, but with the thinner rope this time. Next, the distance which our rat needs to tightrope, before earning a reward, will gradually be increased on the thick rope. Once my rat begins to successfully reach to other platform, the fourth step in this training will be to gradually increase the tight-roping distance, utilizing the with the thinner rope this time. The fifth and final step of this training is to fade out the lure until the rat crosses over on-command (point to other side) or spontaneously performs the behavior of its own volition. The materials required to perform this training are the following: brown rice (the reward), a thick rope, a thinner rope, tape, a large plastic box to train the rat in, and two smaller boxes (landing platforms) which the rat "tightropes" between.